Thread: I will show you that Obama is guilty of sedition.

So far I have 100% linked Obama with Indivisible / and Antifa with the DSA. Next lets put them all together.

Absolute Proof of Obama OFA coordinating with Indivisible which fights Trumps agenda and is involved in nearly all anti Trump protests. As proven above

We have a past president organizing and fighting a current president. This is sedition

Indivisible started after the 2016 presidential election, Dec 14, 2016. This was created just for Trump resistance.

Indivisible: A Practical Guide for Resisting the Trump Agenda

Former congressional staffers reveal best practices for making Congress listen

Donald Trump is the biggest popular vote loser in history to ever call himself President-Elect. In spite of the fact that he has no mandate, he will attempt to use his congressional majority to reshape America in his own racist, authoritarian, and corrupt image. If progressives are going to stop this, we must stand indivisibly opposed to Trump and the members of Congress who would do his bidding. Together, we have the power to resist - and we have the power to win.

We know this because we've seen it before. The authors of this guide are former congressional staffers who witnessed the rise of the Tea Party. We saw these activists take on a popular president with a mandate for change and a supermajority in Congress. We saw them organize locally and convince their own members of Congress to reject President Obama's agenda. Their ideas were wrong, cruel, and tinged with racism - and they won.

We believe that protecting our values and neighbors will require mounting a similar resistance to the Trump agenda - but a resistance built on the values of inclusion, tolerance, and fairness. Trump is not popular. He does not have a mandate. He does not have large congressional margins. If a small minority in the Tea Party can stop President Barack Obama, then we the majority can stop a petty tyrant named Trump.

To this end, the following chapters offer a step-by-step guide for individuals, groups, and organizations looking to replicate the Tea Party's success in getting Congress to listen to a small, vocal, dedicated group of constituents. The guide is intended to be equally useful for stiffening Democratic spines and weakening pro-Trump Republican resolve.

We believe that the next four years depend on citizens across the country standing indivisible against the Trump agenda. We believe that buying into false promises or accepting partial concessions will only further empower Trump to victimize our fellow citizens. We hope that this guide will provide those who share that belief useful tools to make Congress listen.

Who is this document by and for?

We: Are former progressive congressional staffers who saw the Tea Party beat back President Obama's agenda.

We: See the enthusiasm to fight the Trump agenda and want to share insider info on how best to influence Congress to do that.

You: Want to do your part to beat back the Trump agenda and understand that will require more than calls & petitions.

You: Should use this guide, share it, amend it, make it your own, and get to work.

Also, Obama did a podcast with Indivisible right before Trumps Inauguration. Its pinned on their Guides Facebook page.

Lets start connecting dots.

I have been able to link just about every protest to Indivisible activity.

I have even a ton more schedules than this.

Oh and Obama and Eric Holder were a team effort too between 2 orgs. Holder was in OFA and the new one.

The screenshot shows a tweet from the user @pepesgrandma. The tweet text reads: "Protests are anything but spontaneous in the US. They're highly organized with multiple Democrat orgs colluding. Below the text is a screenshot of a Google spreadsheet titled "IMPEACH & REMOVE" with a search bar and a table of event data. The spreadsheet has columns for City, State, Date, Time, Location, and Attendance. The tweet is timestamped "7:03 PM · Jul 27, 2020" and has 419 likes and 460 retweets.

More dots to connect here... The Democratic Socialists of America of Houston and Indivisible joined forces May 5, 2017.

Now wait a minute, didn't I already connect DSA and Antifa? 😏😏 It gets better...

HOUSTON DEMOCRATIC SOCIALISTS OF AMERICA AND ALLIED GROUPS ORGANIZE PROTEST OF REP. CULBERSON'S DISASTEROUS VOTE TO REPEAL AFFORDABLE CARE ACT

MAY 5, 2017

HOUSTON, TX – The Houston chapter of the Democratic Socialists of America (Houston DSA) is allying with local groups, such as Indivisible Houston, to organize a protest against Representative John Culbertson's vote in favor of the American Health Care Act (HR 1628; aka, AHCA). The protest will take place on Sunday, May 7, 2017 from 2:00 – 5:00pm in front of the office of Rep. Culbertson (R) at 10000 Memorial Drive, Houston, TX 77024.

Houston DSA and Indivisible Houston aim to bring attention to the millions of Americans that will lose health insurance coverage under this act and to denounce the elimination of rules prohibiting insurance companies discriminating against people with pre-existing conditions such as, asthma, cancer, pregnancy and even sexual assault. While communities in Houston will suffer under this new law, it cuts $350 billion in taxes for the wealthiest 1%.

Furthermore, Houston DSA and allied groups firmly call for both parties to take up HR 676, which would enact Medicare for All. Medicare for all (or single payer) is broadly popular with a 58% approval rating according to Gallup polling. Just as Obamacare will reduce the rolls of the uninsured by 24 million at the last estimate compared to the AHCA, Single Payer will reduce that number by a further 28 million people. So, the moral imperative for single payer is clear. Now more than ever, we need a health care system that leaves no one behind and doesn't bankrupt our families.

Next up, propaganda. I saw Obama started propaganda his first day. So I set out for proof no one else had.

Oct 2013, Santiago Lyons, the VP of the AP gave a speech on Obama's propaganda which started his first day.

Link's from AP media site and safe.

https://cdn.ymaws.com/www.apme.com/resource/resmgr/2013/WH_ACCESS_REMARKS.docx

Remarks by Associated Press VP & Director of Photography, Santiago Lyon at APME conference in Indianapolis, Oct 30, 2013.

If real estate is all about "Location, location, location", then journalism has a lot to do with "Access, access and access".

This is especially true for the protagonist of much of our Washington journalism, a man, The President, who lives in a big White House on Pennsylvania Avenue, protected by layer upon layer of physical security.

But once credentialed journalists have had their names and press passes checked, their bags x-rayed and then find themselves inside the White House, there is still the issue of actually seeing Mr. Obama in order to be able to take his picture.

And when we compare this presidency to previous administrations it becomes clear that we enjoy less photographic access to the President than ever before – sort of surprising for someone who campaigned for office on a theme of transparency.

So let's take a look:

Mr. Obama has a very talented official photographer by the name of Pete Souza, a former photojournalist for the Chicago Tribune, among other publications.

Who is Mr. Souza? He was Ronald Reagan's official photographer during his second term and started covering Mr. Obama for the Chicago Tribune soon after he came to Washington as a Senator, traveling with him on numerous trips and establishing a relationship that allowed him to be named Director of the White House Photography Office and the President's official photographer.

On Mr. Obama's first day in the Oval Office, an historic occasion, media outlets pressed for - but were denied access to the President at his desk.

Instead the White House released an official photo.

This marked a trend that has been in place ever since.

Why is this important?

Because journalism, in this case photojournalism must be free and unfettered.

Independent photographers strive to show things as they actually are, not how the protagonists would like to see them.

Showing the details, making choices of angles, all of these things are the vocabulary of photography.

To allow the White House to control the message by selecting images that put the President in a consistently rosy light is merely serving a public relations exercise.

In May, 2009 the White House started releasing Souza's photos on Flickr, a photo-sharing website. Their rationale apparently being that they could bypass the traditional media and leverage social media to get their message out.

Intimate but carefully sanitized moments of Obama with his staff, everyone looking cheery and relaxed.

How about budget negotiations? Everyone looks relaxed and friendly in this official image but we later learned from sources that the atmosphere was tense and unfriendly.

Is this propaganda?

We used to have access to these sorts of meetings and more. Much more.

There is to date, no independent visual record of President Obama with his staff in the Oval Office. The White House has released multiple official photos of Obama alone at his desk.

Yet since he became President, the media have only been allowed into the Oval Office twice to photograph him alone at his desk; once back in 2009 and again in 2010.

When we do get in, we make sure to milk the access for all it's worth, producing multiple images from a few seconds of access.

Previous administrations allowed photographers in much more frequently.

Both changes in regulations and changes in laws have been signed with no independent media access.

Significant meetings have been closed to the media.

Needless to say none of you would publish a written press release verbatim – so why would we accept a visual press release for distribution?

But no longer.

Some recent releases have been tied to issues in the news.

Gun control, even deaths abroad.

We always make a fuss, and regularly refuse these handouts.

ROBBIN ISLAND SLIDE - Sometimes our protests work as in this case.

more often they do no not.

Even important foreign visitors are received in private.

The point here is that we expect and demand access to the leaders of democratic nations where press freedoms are enshrined.

Sadly this administration is riding roughshod over those freedoms and access has become a casualty.

Obama did not like anyone from the press speaking badly about him.

CNN was threatened into publishing propaganda for the Obama admin. They mentioned that the Whitehouse had people go after anyone that reported badly on him.

@pepesgrandma

Thread:

If the GLOBAL riots seem organized to you, they were. I have found the actual blueprint for the Democrat organizing. FOR THE ENTIRE WORLD!

Humanity does not deserve this. Hopefully, I will end it with light.

I call this the Blueprint to the destruction of civility.

Project Intent:

The goal of this project is to co-create useful resources that help organizers and campaigners around the world "up their game" quickly. With more agile strategies and execution, we'll be better equipped to make progressive social change happen at a time when we really need more of it. We want to compile knowledge and direct experience to make shared best practices freely accessible for as many progressive campaigners as possible. We also want everyone who contributes to feel respected and empowered in the process.

Driving us is a desire to share best practices, build a community of practitioners, enable open collaboration and to help progressive campaigners and organizers innovate so that we can achieve more wins on all fronts.

All of the how-to's created by this project will be made freely available to any person or group who could use them for sharing, editing and remixing under a Creative Commons license.

Values & how we live them:

Blueprints for Change is a values-driven project. We are all trying to go beyond our comfort zones and build networks of peers to create something inclusive and empowering for all involved. Through our guides and networked model, we are attempting to revise current dominant narratives and archetypes around campaigning and organizing, prioritizing people-powered change led by those who are most marginalized.
